

Employer Benefits Program

Did you know, pet insurance is one of the fastest growing and most in-demand employee benefits in today's market?

What is Pet Insurance?

Pet insurance is health insurance for dogs and cats. It allows pet owners to meet the healthcare needs of their pets by reimbursing for costly veterinary bills. It can cover anything from accidents, illnesses, emergency care and wellness.

Pet insurance is seeing rapid growth in recent years. In 2016, there were over 1.8 million pets insured in the United States—that's a 12% annual growth rate over the previous year.

"In 2016, approximately 68%, that's 85 million, US households owned at least one pet."

Reasons for Growth

1. Pet insurance allows pet owners make decisions about their pet's health without the worry of how they will pay for it.
2. Pet insurance alleviates some of the financial burden of owning a pet allowing pet owners to take better care of their pets.
3. Pet insurance gives pet owners peace-of-mind knowing they can meet their pet's healthcare needs.

According to the North American Pet Insurance Association, the #1 reason people buy pet insurance is to be able to "make decisions about their pet's healthcare without worrying about whether or not they can afford treatment."

Why should you be offering pet insurance as an employee benefit?

Don't be the last employer to see the value in this desirable employee benefit! Pet insurance has seen rapid growth in recent years and is quickly becoming an integral part of pet healthcare.

Most pet owners think of their pets as family and want to provide them with the same quality medical care as their family. More and more employers are beginning to take notice and offer pet insurance as part of their voluntary benefits package. You can provide this benefit and show current and future employees that you care about their WHOLE family!

"In 2016, Americans spent nearly $67 billion on their pets with over $15 billion spent on vet care."
